Let's Start!

Writing Spot: It's time to write a survey.

Learning Outcome

Exchange information about people's interests and backgrounds using a wider range of language.

Can Do Statements

- I can develop a simple questionnaire or survey.
- I can give opinions.
- I can talk about jobs and work.

Ask your partner:

- Have you every conducted a survey?
How did it go?
- Do you ever fill out customer satisfaction surveys?

Let's Explore!

Survey says!*

* "Survey says" is a line used on a famous game show called Family Feud when the results of a survey are being displayed.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Peter: Hello, my name is Peter Smith. This is a survey on Holly's. The purpose of the survey is to get insight on brand awareness, the name of the company, and the company's philosophy. Do you have a minute to answer some questions?
- Shopper: Alright.
- Peter: What are your impressions of Holly's apparel?
- Shopper: I'm a great believer in their products.
- Peter: How about the company itself?
- Shopper: I don't know. Honestly, I never think about companies.
- Peter: Have you heard any news about child labor connected with Holly's?
- Shopper: To be honest, I don't listen to the news. But I'm sure that if I heard something about child labor I wouldn't buy it. Is there a problem?
- Peter: No. There were some concerns but Holly's is acting responsibly about that.
- Shopper: Good.
- Peter: So, you don't think too much about the company's objectives and priorities?
- Shopper: Well, I suppose any company wants to have a good product and make profit. The way I see it, not too many companies approach customers with surveys. So maybe Holly's cares about connecting with consumers.
- Peter: Good thoughts. I'm almost done here. We're looking at our company's image and wondering whether it reflects our philosophy to the public. What do you think of the name?
- Shopper: Ummm, who's Holly?
- Peter: Ha ha!
- Shopper: Seriously!
- Peter: I, uh, don't know.
- Shopper: Well there you have it.
- Peter: I guess so. Well, thank you for your time. By the way, don't forget to look up our website next month to learn more about what Holly's will be doing beyond simple product for profit.
- Shopper: Sounds good!

Let's Practice!

Let's identify the steps to complete a survey!

Instructions: Match the question on the left with the corresponding tip on the right. Practice asking and answering with a partner. Correct each other's pronunciation and intonation.

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. What do you want to know? | a. Start by brainstorming. This will help you find the direction you want. |
| 2. Who are you going to ask? | b. It is important to decide what group you are going to focus on. |
| 3. What questions are you going to ask? | c. Analyze the results once you're finished. |
| 4. How are you going to conduct the survey? | d. These days, you can use special websites for conducting online surveys. |
| 5. What do you do once the survey is done? | e. Open-ended questions are questions that allow a broader response. |

Let's Practice!

An *anonymous shopper gives some opinions.

*"Anonymous" means unknown or unidentified.

Instructions: Choose words from the box to correctly complete the sentences. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

So maybe Holly's / I'm a great believer / Who cares / The way I see it, / I'm sure that if / I suppose any / It's impossible

- _____ in their products.
- But _____ I heard something about them using child labor I wouldn't buy the product.
- _____ company wants to have a good product and make profit.
- _____ not too many companies approach customers with surveys.
- _____ cares about connecting with consumers.

Extension Activity

Have a debate about ethical responsibility.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Get together in a group of four.
- Two people will argue that a corporation must be ethically responsible to influence the public.
- The other two people will argue that it is the public that must be ethically responsible first and influence corporations.
- Each side must develop four or five supporting arguments.
- Once the arguments are ready, take turns debating.
- When you cannot think of any more arguments, end the debate and decide which team had the most convincing arguments.

Giving Opinions

Conversations are far more interesting when people interact during the conversation. It is important to ask for others' opinions on a subject as well as giving your own.

Here are some ways you can give opinions.

- I'm a great believer in ...
- Honestly, ...
- To be honest, ...
- I'm sure that ...
- I suppose ...
- The way I see it, ...

Examples:

- The way I see it, not many companies actually ask consumers how they feel about their products.
- I'm a great believer in what they do.
- Honestly, I never think too much about that.
- To be honest, I don't actually follow the news.

Question Formation

A survey allows you to gather information quickly on a topic of your interest. When creating a survey, it is important to ask the right questions so as to gather customer feedback effectively.

When forming questions in English, it is easy to follow the formula called QUASM. That is QU (=QQuestion word), A (=Auxiliary verb), S (=Subject) and M (=Main verb).

This formula applies to any question in English.

Question word	Auxiliary verb	Subject	Main Verb
What	do	you	think	of Holly's apparel?
What	do	you	like	about it?
	Have	you	heard	any news recently?
	Do	you	think	much about the company's objectives?
How	do	you	feel	about the name?
